Note from Lifespark Chaplain:

'All nature sings, and 'round me rings the music of the spheres.'

-Maltbie D. Babcock (1901)

The summer months have come around again, the seasons changing as they do. Nature is a wise teacher for us about the rhythms of life. The seasons come and the seasons change, so it is for all of us. Many people around the world believe that connecting with nature can be a source of spiritual growth and healing. Spending time outside, whether soaking up some sun on a warm day or looking up into the night sky, can remind us that we are part of something big and beautiful and complex. Looking closely at a leaf or flower or even a single blade of grass can inspire our creativity or move us to compassion. This summer, can you make time to be outside in nature? Notice what you see, what you hear, and what it feels like to simply be who you are amid the beauty of creation. May you experience belonging in this world and awareness that you, too, are part of the beauty of the earth.
